Distinguished Guests Attend
150th Anniversary of Bristol
Lodge, No. 25

RECEPTION IS HELD Session is Held With Grand Lodge Officers Occu- pying Stations

Featured by the attendance of an unusually large number of grand lodge officers, men of prominence in Masonic circles, and distinguished guests, the 150th anniversary of Bristol Lodge, No. 25, F. and A. M., was celebrated here Saturday.

There was a reception of grand lodge officers, a session of the lodge, and a banquet. The reception and the session of the lodge were held in the Masonic Temple; the banquet was staged in the auditorium of the Bristol high school.

There was an informal gathering at 2.30 Saturday afternoon in the Masonic Temple. This was devoted principally to a reception to the grand lodge officers, and at its conclusion a session of the lodge was held at five o'clock. William J. Rue, W. M., conducted the opening of the lodge which was followed by a prayer offered by James Guy, chaplain. The history of Bristol Lodge, No. 25, from 1905 to 1930, was given by Isaac S. H. Jones, P. M. William S. Snyder, R. W. G. M., delivered an address, as did also J. Willson Smith, R. W. P. G. M.; Otto R. Heilgman, R. W. S. G. W.

The visiting grand lodge officers took charge of the lodge session, the following occupying the various stations: William S. Snyder, R. W. G. M.; Otto R. Heilgman, R. W. D. G. M.; Walter M. Carwithen, R. W. S. G. W.; Thaddeus S. Adle, R. W. J. G. W.; Charles E. Roberts, R. W. G. M., treasurer; John A. Perry, R. W., grand secretary; William A. Rhodes, D. G. S.; J. Willson Smith, R. W. P. G. M.; Benjamin L. Berry, D. D. G. M.

Upon adjournment to the high school auditorium the nearly 400 members and guests were ushered into a veritable flower garden. Wild smilax formed the four walls enclosing the assemblage. The group was seated at tables arranged like a wheel, the hub of which was a round table for the Grand Lodge officers. Baskets of roses, potted plants and cut flowers festooned the tables and graced the stage. Tall palms concealed the corners and lent gracefulness to the scene.

The following menu was served: Grapefruit cocktail, hearts of celery, queen olives, stewed snapper at la McCallister, dinner rolls, broiled fresh mackerel with butter sauce, parsley potatoes, sherbet, broiled half spring chicken, cranberry jelly, rice cressole, fresh creamed mushrooms, lettuce and tomato salad, mayonnaise dressing, French vanilla ice cream, strawberries, fancy cakes, salted nuts, cream mints, coffee.

James Guy, chaplain, delivered the invocation at the banquet. William J. Rue, W. M., introduced the toastmaster, Samuel K. Faust, P. M. Ernest Baxter gave a vocal solo, and was accompanied by Keith M. Rosser at the piano.

A male chorus composed of members of the Philadelphia Consistory choir, under the direction of Nelson A. Chesnut, with Richard Lee Entwistle at the piano, furnished selections throughout the evening. Addresses were given by: Thomas F. G. Selxas, P. M., Equity Lodge, 591; William E. P. Haas, P. M., Meridian Sun Lodge, No. 158.

RALPH R. SLOAT DIES IN THE CHAIR TODAY

No Last Minute Respite Saved
One Convicted of John
Lowry's Murder

ELDER LOWRY PRESENT

ROCKVIEW PENITENTIARY,
BELLEFONTE, Pa., Mar. 31.—(INS)—

No last minute respite came to save him and Ralph Russell Sloat, convicted of the murder of John Lowry, Scranton taxi-cab driver, died in the electric chair here this morning.

In the presence of Bert Lowry, father of the man for whose death the Commonwealth declared he too must die, Sloat took the sixteen steps from the little grey door of death row to the electric chair. Quickly and quietly, in the deadly calm of the death cell, the guards strapped him to the chair, electrodes in place.

A signal from the warden and Robert Elliot, of New York, threw the switch—a sputter, a crackling, a twitch—and Sloat had paid for his crime.

John Lowry was killed and his body thrown into the waters of the stream near Scranton early last year. His taxi-cab was recovered a short time later, in Rummelade, N. J. Through it the crime was traced to Ralph Russell Sloat and he was tried in Lackawanna County courts.

A jury found him guilty of murder in the first degree and the case was appealed. The Appellate Court upheld the decision of the lower court and the Supreme Court refused to reverse.

The State Board of Pardons refused to intervene and Governor John S. Fisher saw no reason for execution interference, though he went over the case with Sloat's counsel last Friday.

Saturday morning Sloat began his last ride—from the jail in Scranton to the Penitentiary here. Under heavy guard, the slayer left before word came from the Governor that he could not see reason for executive clemency.

When the party reached Rockview, Sloat was placed at once in death row where he remained until this morning.

BRIEF DEFENSE RESUMED IN THE MARCHAND CASE

Only Dozen Witnesses Called;
Lila Will Not Be Among Them

BUT INDIAN IS WILLING

By James L. Kilgallen
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

BUFFALO, N. Y., Mar. 31.—A brief defense, lacking the drama of the dark-eyed Indian girl defendant taking the stand in a fight to save herself from the electric chair, was indicated today as the trial of Lila Jimerson, accused of the hammer murder of Mrs. Clothilde Marchand was resumed after an adjournment since late Friday when the state rested its case.

Only a dozen defense witnesses will be called and Lila will not be one of them, her attorneys stated. They believe it would be bad legal tactics for Lila to take the stand even though she has indicated a willingness to do so. The lawyers feel she might become confused and give testimony inimical to her defense.

Lila has taken an active interest in the trial. She has been scribbling notes of advice to her attorneys while witnesses have been on the stand, once, when her former sweetheart, Henri Marchand, noted sculptor and vagabond lover, was on the stand telling of his "affair" with her and other women she leaned forward in her chair and hissed "Liar."

The defense will seek to prove, through its witnesses that Lila was not the instigator of the crime.

TRANSIT CO. IS REFUSED A BUS LINE PERMIT

Public Service Commission
States Such Permit Would Harm Trolley Company

"HAD HARD STRUGGLE"

The Public Service Commission at Harrisburg Saturday refused for the first time an application of the Pennsylvania General Transit Company to operate bus lines. The refusal was given on an application between Morrisville and Philadelphia.

The Commission in its opinion asserted that the Trenton, Bristol and Philadelphia Railway Company operating the trolley line between the points designated "has had a hard struggle for existence" and that to permit additional competition would undoubtedly "hasten, or make inevitable, total cessation of service."

The Pennsylvania General Transit Company is affiliated with the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company under Mitten Management and operates at the present time a bus line through Bristol between New York and Philadelphia. Under its permit passengers cannot be taken on at points in Pennsylvania between Philadelphia and Trenton for points other than those outside of the state.

In its application the Pennsylvania General Transit Company asked permission to "pick up and let off" passengers between Philadelphia and Morrisville. If such a permit had been granted it would have made the bus lines of the applicant a direct competitor with the present trolley line as well as the motor coaches operated by the Delaware River Coach Company, which is affiliated with the trolley company.

Hearing upon the application was held before a member of the Commission on January 28th at which time numerous residents of Bristol and nearby district testified both in favor of and against the applicant.

FUNERAL OF LATE DR. WILLIAM FOX WILL BE TUESDAY

Morrisville Dentist, Who Died
Sunday Morning, Was Well Known

WAS BELOVED BY MANY Deceased, Who Was 66 Years of Age, Very Active in Bristol Elks' Lodge

MORRISVILLE, Mar. 31.—Funeral services will be held tomorrow, for the late Dr. William H. Fox, Sr., at two o'clock from his late residence here. The Rev. L. V. C. Mytton, pastor of the Presbyterian Church will officiate. Burial will be made in Newtown Cemetery.

Dr. Fox, retired dentist and for many years prominently identified with school and lodge activities of Morrisville and Bucks County, died at his home, 133 Delmorr avenue, early yesterday morning after a short illness of pneumonia. He was 66 years old.

Dr. Fox was stricken with a heavy cold about ten days ago while visiting in Philadelphia, and although he was removed to his home his condition was not considered serious until Friday. He contracted pneumonia on that day and grew steadily worse until death occurred at 4 o'clock yesterday morning.

Active in the affairs of his community, Dr. Fox served as a member of the Morrisville Board of Education for more than ten years and often assisted on various civic committees. During his years of service on the school board he acted both as president and treasurer of the body.

As a young man Dr. Fox found time to study dentistry at a Philadelphia college while working as a passenger conductor on the Philadelphia & Reading lines between Camden and Atlantic City. Following his graduation he began his practice in Yardley, but moved to Morrisville in 1894, and continued his dental work there until 1920 when he retired in favor of his son, Dr. Ralph M. Fox.

Although he divided his time between many lodges and societies, Dr. Fox devoted a large portion of his energies to the Bristol Lodge of Elks. He was the past exalted ruler of that organization and served as a delegate to the State convention numerous times. He also was appointed to the Grand Lodge Committee and was honored with a life membership in the New Jersey State Elks' Association. At the time of his death he was acting chaplain of the Bristol Lodge.

WASHINGTON, Mar. 31.—The Senate did not act in the interest of the American people in lowering the rates of the House bill on industrial schedules, Representative Watson, of Pennsylvania, said today in prophesying that situation would be remedied in conference.

As the Pennsylvanian sees it, the tariff bill when it emerges from the conference "will be fairly satisfactory." Watson gave Senator Grundy credit for preventing further discrepancies in rates to the detriment of industry.

COLONIAL FURNITURE, SILVER AND BRASS-WARE DESTROYED AS FIRE GUTS GIORDON RESIDENCE

Loss On Building and Contents at Radcliffe Street Property Is Placed at $8,000 — Some Pieces Cannot Be Replaced

Old pieces of Colonial furniture, prints, etchings, and valuable silver and brassware, much of which cannot be reproduced, were destroyed in a fire last evening which completely gutted the dining-room and kitchen on the basement floor of the residence of F. A. M. Giordan, 500 Radcliffe street. The loss was estimated today by Mr. Giordan to approximate $8,000. The intrinsic value of the many articles is not included in this amount. The loss is divided by Mr. Giordan as $3,000 on the property and $5,000 on contents.

The blaze was discovered by James McMutrie who resides on the third floor of the Giordan residence. Mr. McMutrie was retiring when his attention was attracted by the odor of smoke, and as he left his room and stepped into the hall-way on the third floor he was confronted with dense clouds of smoke. He groped his way to the stairway, and after falling down several steps managed to regain his feet and work his way to the front door. Going to a nearby residence he summoned assistance. An alarm was sounded and the Consolidated Fire Department quickly responded. On arrival they were confronted with a roaring furnace in the two rooms on the basement floor, and the sub-basement.

The blaze, in the opinion of Fire Chief James McGee, originated beneath a stairway leading from the sub-basement. The cause is attributed to defective wiring. With the stairway acting as an air-shaft for the flames, they readily spread through the basement where the dining-room and kitchen were located. Here most of the damage was done by the flames as they licked the walls devouring everything in their path.

NOTICE

The directors of the Bristol Needlework Guild are asked to turn in their money derived from private sales of cakes, pies, etc., to Miss Ida Bruden, as soon as possible. The Guild members will sew at the community house tomorrow at two o'clock.

Fine pieces of Colonial furniture, such as a low-boy, Duncan Fife table, six Colonial dining-room chairs, a genuine walnut corner cupboard, brass and silver plaques were destroyed. The silver and brassware were melted by the intense heat.

An old silver tea-kettle which was very valuable was lost in the fire. A canary bird, nine years old, a great pet with the Giordan family, was a victim of the blaze. The bird was trained to do numerous tricks, such as flying from his cage and resting upon the fingers of the members of the Giordan family while he ate from their hands.

One dozen prints and etchings of artists were among the valuable articles which are a total loss. Many of these Mr. Giordan said cannot be reproduced.

While the flames were confined to the basement and sub-basement, the smoke did the damage to the three floors above. Mr. Giordan stated today that it would be necessary to remodel two rooms on the first floor and redecorate the entire interior of the building.

Mr. Giordan and his family were away at the time, and after the arrival of the firemen they had to break into the property to get at the blaze. Rumors spread about the crowd that a son of the Giordons was on the third floor. Firemen placed ladders against the front of the building and broke through a window on the third floor and crawled to the interior. Upon investigation it was learned that no one was in the house at that time. After the flames had been extinguished the Giordan family returned and they had their son with them.

The firemen did very excellent work in confining the flames to the basement. The intense heat and the dense smoke made the fight a difficult one. Smoke masks were used to good advantage.

After the flames had been extinguished and the debris cleared away, a group of firemen under Chief McGee returned to the premises with powerful lights and searched the debris for anything of value. It was then learned that the silver and brassware had been melted to a mass. A closet in the dining-room filled with valuable China and glass-ware was saved. This was located on one side of the room and had just about been reached by the fire when the firemen had conquered the blaze. The glass panels in the doors had been cracked by the heat, but a hasty investigation showed that nothing inside the closet had been damaged.

REPEALING HOARY LAWS

Miracles do happen in this scientific age and nobody doubts that fact since the New Jersey legislature broke all precedent and smashed all the accepted rules of the day by repealing five hundred obsolete, unnecessary and unenforceable laws. Now that the ice has been broken, congress and the other 47 state legislatures could make the plunge with beneficial results to the people, collectively and individually.

Many of the repealed New Jersey statutes had been repealed by popular consent long before the legislature acted. But so long as they remained on the statute books they offered an opportunity for the mischief maker to hale an unsuspecting person into court charged with violation of a law the existence of which had been forgotten.

Of late there has been considerable discussion of "the sacredness of all law" and "the duty of public officials to enforce the laws." Existence on the statute books of hundreds of impractical, silly, outworn and unenforceable laws puts this discussion in a ridiculous light, for those who preach obedience to law and the sacredness of all laws and would be among the first to protest against the enforcement of some forgotten statutes. Should the courts and police ever take the law-enforcement advocates at their word, there would be danger of a popular uprising against all law. For there are laws which nobody wants invoked.

"There ought to be a law" is a pernicious phrase that ought to be amended by the addition of the simple word "repeal."

AIRPLANE'S MANY USES

The airplane has been put to many curious uses in addition to its commonplace transportation and military functions. Planes are used in directing fights against forest fires, mapping, crop dusting, rum chasing, archaeological research, emergency medical relief, prospecting, pursuing criminals, rescuing the endangered and hunting the lost. The latest use found for them is bombing out of existence herds of infected wild horses.

But the ubiquitous birds of passage also have less respectable occupations. Liquor smuggling by planes across the Canadian border has attracted the proportions of a problem. At the Mexican border evidence has been uncovered that planes are being used to smuggle Chinese and other aliens into the United States.

If the scarcity of pilots willing to take the dual risk and the high cost of aircraft do not combine to limit the use of the airplane in these illicit operations, there is little chance of the authorities completely curbing them. The field of operation of a plane is almost unlimited and the chances of detection few.

In spite of these illegal uses to which the ships of the air are being put they still come within the scope of the proposition that every scientific advance finds 10 times as many peaceful and constructive uses as it finds destructive ones.

Raising a family costs almost as much as it is worth.

One-half the world can't see why the other half lives.

"GENERAL CRACK"

BY GEORGE PREEDY

Copyright 1928 by Dodd Mead & Co., Inc.
The Warner Bros. & Vitaphone production starring John Barrymore, is based on this novel.

SYNOPSIS
General Crack, soldier of fortune, has routed the enemy and prepares to crown King Leopold emperor. The latter gets impatient because he had to yield up Princess Eleonora, whom he wished to keep, to General Crack, as that emperor's price for supporting him in the war. Leopold rushes off to Crack's estate, and compromises Eleonora, Gabor, a spy who discovers them, receives two large diamonds, given Eleonora by her husband, as a bribe for silence. Gabor then informs Crack of Eleonora's duplicity.

CHAPTER XVII—Continued

"I thought," he said, laboring painfully with his words, "I thought, in my weakness and my folly, to keep this from Your Highness for a while, till matters were less critical. Thinking of everything involved—so many men, so many fortunes—a cause which was, one at least, a worthy cause, I felt myself justified in keeping this from Your Highness until the issue of the campaign had been decided. But that accident pushed his point; and now, I cannot persuade, I cannot hope."

Christian raised his hand and made a slight gesture, as if he brushed aside a cloud of irritating

How could she have permitted it? words, as if these elaborate sentences were no more to him than that.

"Do you think," he asked "that she was forced?" Hensdorff replied, bitterly: "No, but all the blame lies with him." He paused before Christian, and added, desperately: "I hope Your Highness holds me guiltless in this matter; if you did not, I should be forced to destroy myself, even as Colonel Pons destroyed himself."

Christian had brought the two diamonds out, and laid them on the table.

"Could she not have given him anything else?" he whispered. "Anything else but these? Half naked as he was, he said, gazing at her ruffled charms: 'an accomplished wanton so soon—eh, Hensdorff? How they learn it! And I had thought her so immaculate!—so beyond any possible profanation. Miss this was called, my Russian capital."

"Let her," urged Hensdorff, harshly. "Let her? It is beyond rejection? But her out of your mind? You can be rid of her?"

XVIII

As the imperial cavalcade left the parade ground, Leopold was forced to motion Christian to come alongside his horse. He should have thought him for the appearance and efficiency of the troops, and passed some formal compliments; but he was quite incapable of doing this. Then he asked: "Do we march at once, Prince?" Christian replied, without looking at him:

"Lombardy is an open and an undefended town. I intend to march at once, and meet the enemy before he marches to meet me."

"The season is rigorous," replied Leopold, mechanically, "and many officers have declared aversion to a sudden movement—indeed, to any further action this winter."

"Despite that," said Christian, "I shall advance."

He turned slightly in his saddle and stared at Leopold. At that look, Leopold blenched and started, so that his nervous horse curved out of the line of march.

Leopold was unreasonably silent. The vanguard, and the greater part of the French troops, were now marching out of the town; but Christian desired the Emperor to turn aside with him into a field outside the walls, and Leopold dared not refuse.

"There is," remarked Christian, "something to be done, and I wish Your Majesty to see it done."

They had with them an escort of Chibans and Dragoons, and when they reached the flat, damp, bleak

Tuning in on the Talkies

NO history of the movies can be written in five hundred words. There are not that many adjectives.

All pictures that ex-President Coolidge had taken on his visit to Warner Bros.' talkie studios in Hollywood were silent, of course.

"The Five Facets of Flo" inspired a movie before the days of speaking films. Now it requires an electrician and not a plumber to create the talkies.

Alice Joyce is one screen queen who has survived dumb pictures to continue with equal popularity in the talkies. She is now foiling the villainy of George Arliss in "The Green Goddess."

"When a Man Rides Alone" his car must be extremely out of date.

Told in Two Lines
"Love's Greatest Mistake."
"Companionate Marriage."

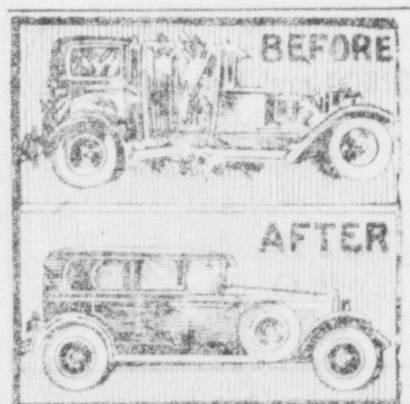

"The Victory of Conscience": An honest income tax return.

Fence Rail Talkies
Farmer Silo says: "Now that my boy in college has got me so I can say 'radio' to suit him the next thing for me to do is to say 'radishes' his way."

Important If True
"Uneasy Payments" are not so frankly advertised.
"Vicious Liars" get that way through much practice.
"Swords and the Woman" may be forerunner of a hat-pin revival.

Just Movie News
"Song of the West" was filmed outdoors in nature's colors.

First National provides "The Devil's Playground" for Billie Dove. "Believe It Or Not" Ripley is going to do his wonders in Vitaphone Varieties.

THE POPULARITY OF ENFORCEMENT

To the Editor of the Public Ledger:

Sir — It is not the Drys who are forcing the question to the front. And the great reason why the Wets are doing this is because enforcement has become more popular under the present Administration. The White House has set its right example, and many have followed it.

If prohibition was not prohibiting, there would be no need for any woman to turn her kitchen into a saloon.

For the Comfort and Convenience of the Public

Street railway companies in Pennsylvania operate because "public convenience and necessity" require the service which they render.

The development of automotive transportation has drained the treasuries of the street railways, but it has not lessened the need for them. There are still many thousands of people who find the trolleys the cheapest and safest means of transportation.

No matter what the weather may be, the trolley service we render is available. It may be too stormy to drive your automobile, but the trolley runs just the same. There may be only a few passengers to be hauled in the "lean" hours, but the trolley is there to haul them.

There is no public service more deserving of the public's support and good will than the trolley service. It exists for the comfort and convenience of the people.

Officers of The Grand Lodge at Masonic Banquet

H. Watson, secretary of Bristol Lodge since December 27, 1899, with an onyx desk set with pen and pencil set to match, as a gift from the past masters and present officers of Bristol Lodge.

The occasion was marked by a number of features such as the attendance of the grand lodge officers and the presence of Dr. Howard Pursell, oldest living member of Bristol Lodge, and Thaddeus S. Adle, D. D. G. M., of the sixth district, both of whom attended the 100th and 125th anniversaries of Lodge No. 25.

The Bristol Lodge, No. 25, has had an interesting history, which was presented in an elaborate souvenir booklet. Numerous of its members distinguished themselves not only in the Masonic fraternity but in the world of affairs. For instance John Fitch whose inventive faculties were directed to the application of steam power in 1785, to the propulsion of boats, and in the experiments made "with oars that were worked in frames," in trips from Philadelphia, Bristol and Burlington and Trenton, was only one of the outstanding personages.

The officers of Bristol Lodge are as follows:

William J. Rue, W. M.; John F. Smoyer, S. W.; Frank H. Reed, J. W.; William H. H. Fine, P. M.; William H. Watson, P. M.; trustees—Louis B. Gorton, Thomas Jenks Wessaw, P. M.; Russell B. Carty, P. M.; Alvin T. Lipincott, William H. Arensmeyer, P. M.; Charles P. Dunagan, P. M.; representative to grand lodge, Appointed officers are: James Guy, chaplain; H. Stanford Roberts, S. D.; George F. Zarr, J. D.; Keith M. Rosser, S. M.; of C.; Ralph S. Roberts, J. M. of C.; Elwood A. Britton, P. C.; Leonard G. Bell, Tyler; William C. Grace, Jr., and Charles G. Rathke, stewards.

Appreciations were extended to the Bristol police and the Board of Education for courtesies extended.

The 150th anniversary committee consisted of the following:

Samuel K. Faust, P. M., chairman; Isaac S. H. Jones, P. M., secretary and treasurer; Russell B. Carty, P. M.; Howard P. Case, William G. Kelly, P. M.; Frank H. Reed, J. W.; Alfred L. Thompson, P. M.; Lewis R. Walton, P. M.; William J. Rue, W. M.

After partaking of an appetizing menu prepared in the Italian style there were numerous speeches made and felicitations extended to the Rev. Solia. The menu consisted of: Antipasto alla Mascagna, spaghetti in the Neapolitan style, ragu with peas, roast chicken with potatoes and salad, coffee, ice cream and cake.

Among the speakers were Dr. J. Fred Wagner, of Bristol, Dr. Wagner is an ex-serviceman and also president of Borough Council. He extended congratulations to Rev. Solia, and touched briefly upon the days when he, like Rev. Solia, was on the firing line. Colonel H. Harrison Smith, commander of the 316th Regiment Infantry Reserves, gave interesting reminiscences of the war. He was Rev. Solia's superior officer, and he spoke of the work of the chaplains and some of the experiences which they had in France. He also touched upon the work which Rev. Solia has done in peace times in Bristol in the development of the church over which he now presides. Miss Sallie H. Greene, of Philadelphia, a personal friend of Rev. Solia, told of having first met the honored guest on the third day after his arrival in America in 1911. Miss Greene was Rev. Solia's first English teacher. Dr. Voorhes, of the Eddington Presbyterian Church, briefly touched upon the honor which was being paid to the guest of the evening, and of the work which he had done among the Italian people here in Bristol.

A gift of appreciation was presented on behalf of the members of Rev. Solia's church by the toastmaster. It consisted of a fountain pen and pencil. Rev. Solia, when called upon to speak, was somewhat at a loss to find words in which to adequately express his appreciation of the honors tendered him during the evening. He thanked those who had participated in the event and in making reference to his days in the army, spoke of the cordiality of the officers to him in those trying days.

Music was furnished during the evening by Nicholas Romagnano, Miss Jennie Tison and Miss Fannie Rubertone assisted. A radio was installed for the occasion by Alfred Tomesani.

Felicitations were read from Senator Joseph R. Grundy and Burgess Clifford L. Anderson.

His superior knowledge of the tariff and its history, the commodities that need protection and his perception of the art of legislation were miracles to the older Senators. Representative Watson predicted further: "The tariff bill as reported out of the Senate will be met with strong opposition in the House. An endeavor will be made in the conference to retain the rates in the original bill. The rates will not be as high as needed for adequate protection.
